

Traditional Meal Student Info

Traditional Meals Prepared with Donated (Gifted) Wild Game Meats, Fish and Wild Berries

Traditional foods are an important part of the daily lives of many Tłı̨chǫ people. As part of some TCSA school programs, students may be served traditional meals. Traditional meals may include donated (gifted) foods such as, but not limited to:

- Wild moose, caribou, rabbit, beaver, geese, duck, ptarmigan
- Local fish such pickerel, northern pike, trout and others
- Local wild berries

For your awareness: traditional wild game meats and fish are not federally inspected but harvested according to traditional methods and according to the NWT Wildlife Act General Regulations. These wild game meats and fish are served during TCSA Schools on -and-camp activities and at TCSA schools, which hold a valid Food Establishment Permit under the NWT Public Health Act, Food Establishment Safety Regulations, Section 30(2).

There may be some risks associated with students' consumption of traditional meals. The Government of the Northwest Territories and TCSA, their respective Ministers, officers, servants, employees, agents, and contactors are to be waived, released and hold harmless, of any and all claims, demands and causes of action, suits, debts, damages, and any other liabilities of any nature whatsoever, that a student may have due to participating in the traditional meal offer, or that may hereafter accrue to the student, including without limitation, any and all claims for medical expenses or treatment, personal loss, injury, illness or death.
